

The value of workplace learning

The world of work is changing fast. To make smart choices about your career or education, it's important to understand what working life is really like. Workplace learning gives you the chance to explore different jobs, gain new skills, and see what's involved in a career you might want to follow.

"Work experience is key – until students do hands-on work, they don't realise what it will be like in the workplace."
– Review of Secondary Education

Why try it..

Discover your future with workplace learning

- If you're 14 or older, you can take part in workplace learning while at school.
- Your school career adviser will support you every step of the way.
- Workplace learning can be flexible, whether it's one day a week, a block of days, or different placements with employers.
